

ZARA'S SPRING/SUMMER '17 BAGS

By: Darneka McCann

Even though not everyone can reside in Los Angeles, and on occasion some of us encounter snow flurries from time to time, let's look on the bright side. Brace yourselves! Zara needs to clear out the remaining fall/winter inventory to ultimately bless us with the "NEW IN" for spring/summer 2017. Drop those sales on us, because we all know we can't resist those prices!

I recently visited my local Zara casually looking for a nice handbag I could use until the end of March (Spring is my absolute favorite season). Amidst all the noise of hangers frantically sliding across racks and women walking around with piles of clothes up to their necks, I spotted the spring/summer collection (just a sneak peek). It is nice to see that bright colors and light fabrics are still alive and well. And don't forget! Zara's summer handbags are always adorable.

The trend this upcoming season is all about carrying your bag by hand, even if it has a long strap. My favorite, the "City Bag with Scarf," can be worn as a satchel. It also has a strap, in case you are not into trends and want to carry your bag however you please.

"TREND ALERT- EMBROIDERED BAGS ARE HUGE FOR THE SEASON!"

Another standout piece is the "Tropical City Bag," which can be styled as a handheld or worn with a strap. The embroidery captures the true essence of summer vibes, vacation, and sunshine. Plus, the palm trees are metallic! TREND ALERT: embroidered bags are huge for the season according to my findings.

Let's not overlook the contenders: the Faux Fur Mini Bags in Light Blue and Purple (they are still in season if you want to wear them now). And if you love to pair sneakers with your outfit (just like me!), this is a great bag to tie it all together.

Get over to Zara now or you might find yourself stuck with the leftover pieces that no one buys (or worse, your size might be sold out). Take a moment to explore the sneak peek of the spring/summer collection while you're at it.
